Sheriff Flack, His Son, Meeks and Hart Arraigned.

They Plead Not Guilty and are Ad mitted to Bail.

Judge Monell Too Sick to Appear in General Sessions.

Disappearance of Mrs. Sarah Raymond, or Cherry, the Woman in the Case.

The Sheriff Indicted for Conspiracy-Fraud and Attempted Subornation of Perjury.

Four of the Flack divorce conspirators were arraigned before Judge Gildersleeve in Part II. of the General Bessions at noon to-da . They were Sheriff James A. Plack, William P. Flack, Joseph Meeks and George W. Hart. Judge Ambrose Monell was too ill to leave hi house or he would have been there, too. The sensational part of the proceeding is that Sarah Cherry, alias Susan T. Reynolds, against whom there have been found four indictments, three for felony and one for conspiracy, was missing.

Inspector Byrnes's detectives have been unable to find her, and as Sheriff Flack won't tell mything about her, she has been able to succe-sfully avoid arrest. The rumor was current this morning at the court-house that she had sailed for Europe sonic time ago.

There were six separate indictments, several of which included two or more of the conspirators, so that there are now pending against Sheriff Flack four indictments; against William Flack, one indictment; against Joseph Meeks, three indictments; against Judge Monell, two Miss Cherry, alias Susan T. Reynolds, four, and against George W. Hart, one indictment.

The four prisoners arraigned were admitted to bail, the amount being fixed by Judge Gilderfleeve as follows:

James A. Flack, $5,000; Joseph Meeks, $5,000; George W. Hart, $2,000, and William Fleck, $2,000.

Judge Ambrose Monell's bail was fixed at $5,000, and Miss Cherry's nominally $5,000, but as she was not produced nothing was said about her bail bond.

Matthew Baird, the well-known contractor of $07 I exington avenue, became bondsman for Sheriff Flack and Will Flack, justifying 14 $15,000.

Mrs. Monell, mother of Civil Justice Monell court-house that she had sailed for Europe

After the proceedings in court were over the four consistrators, with their counsel, proceeded to the office of Bond Clerk William H. Penney, where their sureties awaited them and their bonds were executed.

Officers will be sent to the house of Judge Monell to execute his bond, as he will probably be unable to leave the house for some time.

The four members of the famous divorce syndicate were on hand at the District-Attornoy's office at 10 o'clock this morning.

The warrants issued yesterday by Judge Gildersleeve had not left the hands of Mr. Goff, Col. Fellows's assistant, because he knew that all that was necessary to secure the attendance of all the parties wanted, except Miss Cherry, was to send them a notification.

Sheriff Flack and his son, Will, were the first to arrive. They were accompanied by ex-Judges Fullerton and Horace Russell, who have been retained as their respective counsel in this matter.

Then Joseph Mecks came in. His counsel, retained as their respective counsel in this matter.

Then Joseph Meeks came in. His counsel, John H. Bird, was with him, and finally Mr. Hart went in by the back door with Col. E. C. Jones, whom he has retained to defend him.

There was a long conference in the District-Attorney's private room in regard to the amount of bail to be fixed, and finally Col. Fellows went upstairs and took a seat beside Judge Gildersleeve, to whom he submitted the conclusions that he had arrived at.

By this time it was near 11, 30 o'clock. The courtroom was filled with spectators, who were eager to get a look at the people who have lately held so conspicuous a place in the public interest.

door and the arrival of the Flack party was announced.

The lawyer, who was summing up his case to the sury in the case on trial, cut short his fervid remarks: every one in the back part of the room stood up and jostled it neighbor, and the jury men in the box all crained their necks forward to get a better view of the interesting procession that filed in from the corridor.

Detectives Von Gerichten and Kiernan were the Grand Marshale, and after them came Will Flack, the Sheriff, Mr. Meeks and Mr. Hart, in the order named, eccompanied by their lawyers.

The Sheriff looked worn and anxious. Will Flack looked straight at the Judge and did not appear to be greatly disturbed by the novelty of his position.

appear to be greatly disturbed by the novelty of his position.

Referce Meeks looked very pale and solemn, and seemed to realize the sectousness of the situation, while Mr. Hart, who is a tall, thin, gray-bearded man of about sixty, manifested considerable nervousness.

When Clerk Hall called out, "James A. Flack to the bar," tho Sheriff stepped forward and assumed an attitude of clore attention.

"Mr. Flack," said the Clerk, "there are four indictments against you, one for consultacy, one for preparing false evidence and two for attempting to commit subornation of perjury, do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

Judge Fullerion was not ready to plead and taked for ten days' time.

'O. Fellows objected to such delay, and at his suggestion the date for final pleading was fixed for Wednesday, Cct. 9.

The pleas in the other cases took the same course.

After the bail bonds had been completed in the office of Bond Clerk Penney, the Sheriff and his friends left the building with their lawyers. In regard to the non-appearance of Miss Sarah Cherry the representatives of the District-Attorney's office as well as the police were very retient. We have not been able to strest her." they

We have not been able to street her." they said, "and as yet we do not even know where size is. All attenants to ascertain her present whereabouts have thus far been connecessful."

The indictments nee all signed by the Foreman and Secretary of Grand Jury.

The first includes James A. Flack. Ambrose Monell, Joseph Meells and terral Cherry, slies Sman T. Revnoles, and chernes "the preparing of false evidences" under sections 107 and 100 of the Penal Cole.

The testimony upon which the indictment was based was given by Mr., Flack, Mr. Margaret Smith, Kate Cannon and Joseph Meess.

The strike of 150 Union workmen, mostly framers, on the six-story building in Leonard street, between Centre and Baxter, and that on the Union Trust Company's twelve-story building in lower Broadway, continues with little pro-spect of a settlement.

The Board of Delegates saw David H. King, ir., this morning and endeavored to get him and Massys. Cornell, manufacturers of from work for buildings, to effect a softlement of the difficulty, but at latest accounts nothing had been done.

The strikes of the hod-hoisting engineers and derrickmen have caused all the Union bricklay-sers to quit work, though the latter are not attached to the Board of Delegates or the Building Trades Section.

A report was current that the master builders will meet as soon as possible, and declare a general lockout of all hands all over the city, but it is not believed by the Union delegates, who say it is only a "bluff" on the part of Mr. Vincent Stattery, of Horgan & Siattery, building contractors.

GIBLIN'S COUNTERFEITS.

ENGRAVERS TESTIFY THAT HE WANTED THE SUSPICIOUS PLATES MADE.

At this morning's hearing in the Giblip case James A. Scaulau, of the United States Secret Service, testified that the dies found in Giblin's possession were counterfeits.

Henry A. Jackson, of the Moss Engraving Company, testified that the man Waters, who called on Giblin once, came into his office and asked for an engraving of Gen. Grant's head, but his snapicious were aroused and he placed the matter in the hands of the Secret Service Bureau.

Dr. E. J. Donlin repeated his testimoy as to the powder marks on Goelz's face.

Ferdinand Elembeim, an engraver, testified that Gib.in came into his place in 1887 and wanted him to get up a fine cut of a figure five. Witness asked Giblin if the specimen presented was cut from a five-dollar bill, and he admitted that it was. Henheim then refused to make the plate and Gib.in departed.

Contest.

ful Black Housekeeper.

She Claims to Have Married Him More Responses and Suggestions Re-Nearly Two Years Ago.

Surrogate Abbott, of Brooklyn, is hearing the evidence in one of the most startlingly unique will contests ever made in this balliwick. Thomas G. Rodwell. a brother of ex-Fire Commissioner James Rodwell, died at the age of sixty-five years, on June 30, leaving $50,000 speculator. In 1884 Mr. Rodwell made a will bequeathing field properties to his brother and airs. Frances W. Wingham, of 287 ertain . Pirst street; Mrs. Lizzie Ann Walker, 108 Waverley avenue, and Mrs. Elia F. Rodwell, worth of property, acquired as a real estate widow of a deceased brother.

Then the will says that: ''Considering some substantial recognition is due to my servant, Ella F. Crabness, for the fourteen years of faithful service rendered by her. I hereby give to her the houses and lots 177 Navy street and to her the houses and lots 177 Navy street and 310 Hudson avenue."

But on Jan. 9. 1886, Mr. Rodwell wrote a codicil in which he revokes the bequests to his sisters and leaves all the residue of his estate to his "faithful housekeeper," Mrs. Crabness.

Most stupendous of all, when these relatives went with an undertaker to the house of Rodwell, 177 Navy street, for the body, they were met by this housekeeper, who declared that she was the wife of the dead man, having been married to him in December last.

They removed the body, however, against the protests of the widow, and now the sisters context the will on the ground that Thomas G. Rodwell was insane; that the will was not properly executed, and that Ella F. Crabness exercised undue influence over their brother.

An Evgsing Wonto reporter rang the bell at the substantial three-story and basement frame house 17? Navy street this morning. It was alswered by a short, pleasant-faced woman.

"I wish to see Mrs. Thomas G. Rodwell," began the reporter.

"Well, I am Mrs. Rodwell," replied the woman, calmly.

She was as black as Chloe, and there was a mass of knotted, kitchy hair on her head. She was desseed in mourning and formed a symphony in black. She was about thirty-five years old.

"I first met Mr. Rodney in 1869," she said in answer to a question. "When I was at service at Dudley Haines's, and I took care of him for fourteen years.

"When the blizzard came in March, 1887, he had a room around the corner from my house, and I waded through the snow up to my knew to look after him, because I knew he couldn't get out no how.

"Then he said there'd never be another blizzard to catch him that way, and he put me in this house and I furnished it myself.

"Then Mr. Rodwell used to talk about doing right by me, and finally, last December, he took me over to New York to a minister named Mr. Stryker and we were married by him.

"Mr. Stryker was a colored man I never saw before, but Mr. Rodwell had known him many years, I cannot find him now, though my lawver, Mr. Underhill, who is executor of my husband's will, has tried hard to get him to attend court as a witness.

"As true as God is in Heaven, Mr. Rodwell married me and he was the one who first said we must be married. He said I had been faithful to him and looked after him and had loved him.

"Ye got my certificate, and Lord knows I didn't look at his money. I was a widow; Mr. Crabuess was a white man that I married down South, and I had a little boy. He is dead now." The woman seemed to have a full heart, and there was the tenderness of sorrow in her subdued and quiet voice.

When she called upon God to witness that she told the truth, consciously or unconsciously, her sable hand rested on the Book of God which lay on the little centre-table.

NEARING THE END.

"Liverpool Jack's" Case Almost Ready for the Jury.

Part II. of the Court of General Sessions wa moderately filled this morning with men who were curious to know what new measure of justice would be meted out to "Liverpool Jack, who has siready been weighed in the scales and found saily wanting three or four times before, Judge Cowing. 'o had told the counsel yes-terday to expedite matters, and that he would hold court evenings if necessary, took his sea at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Hummel impressed upon the good men that they had sworn that despite any preludice, impression or bias against John Fitzgerald, the prisoner at the bar, he should be regarded by them as impartially in their consideration as if he were a saint.

brisoner at the bar, be should be regarded by them as impartially in their consideration as if he were a saint.

"Little Abe" proceeded to demolish, as far as he was able, the character of David Kennedy. He pictured him as tramping around New York, a homeless tramp who did not desire to work, and repreached the man who had secured him the means of making an honest livelihood.

He told the jury that Junge Bedford had discovered that "Liverpool Jack" was the war cry of this suit against John Fitzpatrick.

Nearly half an hour of Mr. Hummel's discourse was consumed in entreating the jury not to think of him as "Liverpool Jack," but as John Fitzpatrick.

Mr. Hummel unloaded a great deal of rhetoric on the jury. He also praised Judge Cowing for being fair in spite of any newspaper criticism.

Mr. Hummel was nearly as hour on his feet. Judge Bedford then rose and spoke for the prosecution.

He declared that he had often declined to conduct cases where they were not proved. This was the darkest hour of the many dark hours of John Fitzpatrick's life.

There were two issues in this case, he said. Was David Konnelly kidnapped: The second is a question of veracity between the people's witnesses and those of the defandant.

At 1, 15 Judge Cowing had fluished his charge to the jury and they retired to deliberate.

It is evident that there is a deep underlying sentiment in opposition to the desecration of Central Park by using it or any part of it for the World's Fair, and this sentiment is expressed respectfully and without unnecessary exhibition of opposition to the Committee on Site, by suggestions and plans submitted to the Committee from every quarter, and always providing for the erection of the buildings on some other part of the proposed site-in Riverside Park, Morningside or the vacant ground north

The Mayor's Fair mail was not so great to-day as on former days, but there was enough.

A circular-letter dated at Chicago, addressed to the State of Ohio and signed "Charles E. Blinis. President of the Ohio Auxiliary of Chicago." was received by Mayor Grant.

It sets forth a lot of alleged reasons why the Fair should be located in the Windy City, and winds up by saving that Chicago was once a part of Wayne County, O., and that it is because of this fact that it is the liveliest town on earth, though it was long ago cut out of the Buckeye State by the formation of the States of Indiana and Illinois. John H. Pierce of 84 East One Hundred and Thirteenth street, says: "If I was a polymillionaire you should have $100,000," and then suggests a scheme for buying up all the New York newspapers by expending that sum in liberal advertising of the Exposition.

Henry R. Towne, Chairman of the Sub-Committee on Buildings of the Site Committee, said this morning: "The Sub-Committee I think is unanimous in its desire to respond to the popular voice against the use of any part of Central Park for the buildings of the World's Fair, and we shall consider certain half-matured plans at a meeting this afternoon.

"What we propose is to beautify the grounds at the upper end of Central Park and make them a part of the attractions of the Exposition. In the front row were Croker, Bourke Cockran, Commissioner Gilroy, Gen. F. B. Spinola, Congressman Dunphy, Police Justice Gorman and Quarantine Commissioner Charles F. Allen. Just opposite the braves, on the left of the hall, were seated the County Democracy con-tingent, Col. Michael C. Murphy, Police Commissioner Voorbes, Col. John O'Byrne, Alderman Pat Oakley and ex-Alderman Benjamin. On the platform were many prominent New Yorkers. In the very front row sat Thomas C. L. Crain, Mayor Grant's private secretary, and by Chairman Murphy and the temporary organization as perfected according to the programme.

Lieut.-Gov. Jones was escorted to the chair by ex-Collector Daniel Magone and Adrian Tuttle, of Schuyler County.

Mr. Jones read his speech, in which he arraigned the Republican National Administration, touching on the question of the tariff and not forgetting to pay his respects to ex-Pension Commissioner Tanner.

References to ex-President Cleveland and Governor Hill elicited great applause.

The Republican majority in the Legislature was scored for its attempt to "put the Governor in a hole," and the speaker confidently predicted a great Democratic majority for this fall.

On the call of the roll by Secretary Joseph Newhurger when the name of Frank Rice, the candidate for Secretary of State, was called for Ontario it was greeted by great applause, but the greatest cheering was accorded to the names of Richard Croker, W. Bourks Cockran, Thomas F. Gilroy, Henry D. Purroy and John McQuade, of the Tammany delegation, and that of Edward Murphy, from Rensselaer.

Mayor Pat Glesson, of Long Island City, when Queens County was called, announced the usual contest, and sent up his credentials, which were referred to the proper committee.

Roger Foster, on behalf of the Bar of New York and Brooklyn, presented a betition asking for the nomination of Edward L. Rapallo, of New York, for Court of Appeals Judge.

On motion of ex-Collector Magone, Mayor Grant's efforts to secure the World's Fair at New York in 1892 was heartily indorsed.

Col. Murphy moved that when the Convention adjourn it be until 7 o clock p. M.

This was the first move in the fight over the nominations to give more time to work in the affort to kill off Tabor and Wemple.

Sheehan, of Buffalo, promptly amended, but finally compromised on 4 p. M.

MORNING RUMORS AND DISCORDS.

Declaration of War Follows a Secre Seasion of Tammany.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. Synacuse, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Is the slate broken attorney-General Charles F. Tabor and Comp. troller Edward Wemple may not be renom: nated, it is said. Both the County Democracy and Tammany claimed the honor this morning of compassing the defeat of these two gentlemen. William P. Mitchell said this morning: "Yes, of course Tammany is against them now, after it came here last night and discovered that we had taken the initiative in the matter, and they couldn't be nominated anyway." While the Counties may have taken the initiative. Tammany Hall by no means followed. Soon after the Tammany train left Albany yesterday afternoon the heads of Richard Croker, Fire Commissioner Purroy, Thomas F. Gilroy and Bourke Cockran were together, and an earnest consultation on the question of the bad been ordered to their aid.

In a moment it was whispered about that In a moment it was whispered about that Tabor was a dead cock in the pit and that Senator John Foley, of Saratoga, would be the Democratic candidate for Attorney-General. As Comptroller Wemple lives in the same Senatorial district with Senator Foley the question of location would settle the matter of his having a place on the ticket without the ceiling scandal. Thomas E. Benedict, of Ulster County, who was President Cleveland's Public Printer, was accordingly named as a man who would make a clever candidate for Comptroller.

Some rumors even had it that Elliott Danforth was not to have the Treasurership, and that it was to be given to John B. Reilly, of Albany. This is probably nature.

The only contestant for this nomination whom Danforth will have, as it appears this morning, is Internal Revenue Collector William A. Beach, of this city, but Tammany will remember that he was against the Wigwan in that memorable convention of 1879.

Attorney-General Tabor was in the lobby of the Leland this morning, smiling and confidently predicting his nomination, despite all the opposition to him.

Upstairs D. Lowber Smith, against whom he decided in favor of Tammany in the Commissionership of Public Works fight, was swearing vengeance and working like a beaver to secure his defeat.

"That settles him now," said fat Tom Costigan and Judge Power, who sat side by side on a bench outside the dining-room, waiting for a chance to breakfast.

He referred to the fact that Tabor had secured the arrest of Ceiling Contractor Snaith, of which event, and of Mr. Snaith's holding in $50,000 bonds, news reached here last evening. The Counties are as a unit in saying that Tabor had committed political hari-kar in doing this tust on the eve of the Convention, and most of the Tammanites indered that opinion.

Eccretary John C. Sheehan, of the New Aque-Tabor was a dead cock in the pit and that duct Commission, however, did not share these views.

Mr. Sheehan is the Tammany leader of the district, but he comes from Buffalo and is a personal friend of the Attorney-General.

"Tabor." he says, "will be nominated without one vote from New York City, but I don't see how Tammany can help going for him. All of this talk about the Assembly ceiling is brelly. The whote opposition comes from the Cointies, who are mad because Lowber Smith was knocked out by Gilroy.

"I'm going to the meeting of the Tammany delogation at 10 o'clock this morning, and work and vote for Tabor."

Mr. Sheehan and his brother William F., the Little framt of Brie, are confident that the state as given yesterday will alip through with ease, even without the votes of the New York delogation, who are charged with a desire to set themselves up as goody-goody reformers and take advantage of this ery of ceiling scandal to do it.

All of the candidates are present attending to the details of the battle. The city is covered with a place is the headquarters of such a delegation, another that this man is the proper man to fill a certain offices.

Still others call for meetings and cauchyes and another that this man is the proper man to fill a certain office.

Still others call for meetings and caucuses and in every lotted the proprietor has bosted flaming notices: "This way to the bar."

The last-mentioned notices hardly meet with favor from the visiting delegates, who rather resented the imputation that they came to Syracuse to guzzle, and in numerous instances the offending cards were form down.

Alderman David Barry, who was among those left by the Tammany train yesterday, arrived this morning.

left by the Tammany train yesterony, arrived this morning.

Emigration Commissioner Ridgway and Subway Commissioner Daniel L. Gibbins came through on the flyer.

At an early hour to-day the crowds began to wend their way to the big Alhambra Rink, where the Convention was to be held, and which has been appropriately decorated for the occasion.

The place was soon filled with those fortunate enough to possess tickets, while the street about it was crowded with auxious hayseeds who had come to town condicantly expecting to have a pull strong enough to secure a ticket from their delegate friends and were compelled to hear the band, the speeches and the applause from the outside.

band, the specches and the applause from the outside.

The temporary organization will probably be made permanent.

William F. Sheehan is credited with having the platform stowed away in his inside pocket. But a few favored ones had seen it this morning, but it is said by them to be satisfactory in every regard, even to the tarif plaus.

At 11 o'clock it began to be apparent that the sacrifice of Tabor and Wemple was not to be made without opposition.

It was said the opposition came from Albany, and Senator John Foley, who has been very satisfied all along, as the hour for the Convention to be called to order approached began to shake in his boots.

Tammany Hall had been in session at its to be called to order approached bogan to shake in his boots. Tammany Hall had been in session at its headquarters in the Leiand for two hours, and not a baseath of its doings came from bohind the closed doors.

The Kings County delegation, a number of whom aunousced themsolves for Foley last evening, was found to have solidified under orders for Tabor.

Hill men from up the State shook their heads wisely and said that both Tabor and Wemple would be nominated.

Tammany Hall had been won over, they asserted.

This statement was based on a remark of Chairman Murphy of the State Committee, who told Chamberlain Croker that it would do no good to kick against the raxors, as Tabor had 211 pledged votes outside the city.

This argument did not avail, for at hoon Tammany came out of its retirement and amounced that there would be a break all along the line.

They have declared for an entire new tickst.

nounced that there would be a break all along the line.

They have declared for an entire new ticket, with Edward S. Rapallo, of New York, for the Court of Appeals.

"Pound and pound. That's what we've got to do to get what we want, and we're going to do it," said Senator Grady.

Tammany has declared war and there is going to be a lively rumpus and lots of war paint. John D. Teller, of Auburn, will make an effort to accure the nomination for Court of Appeals Judge. It is a free-for-all fight.

The negroes attacked the Superintendent's house with stones and dynamite.

The inmates and officers who had fled there made a brave stand, but were compelled, after having nearly exhausted their ammunition, to seek refuge in the officers' quarters.

As they left the house they were attacked by the negroes, who were howling like fiends and were armed with guns, clubs, razors and stones.

It was during this change of base that the killing of the four men occurred.

Mahon was shot in the head, Fales and Foster were cut and chopped to pieces and Shea was chased away ont of sight of the others, not even his body having been seen since the riot.

The report to this company comes from Acting Supt. D. C. Smith, who was one of the assaulted party.

Friendly negroes assisted the survivors to escape to secure hiding places and the British ship Forward subsequently came to their aid.

The dynamite which the negroes exploded about the Superintendent's house was obtained from the company's magazine, which they broke open. At the time of making the report Mr. Smith

ARE THEY MARRIED

Mr. Carson and Miss Harrison Said to Be United.

A Mysterious Clergyman Who Fled from Interviewing.

The Couple Breakfast at the St. James Together.

The old saying that the course of true leve never runs smoothly seems to have been made expressly f. Miss Mand Harrison, actress, of this city, and Mr. J. D. Carson, of Chicago. Theirs has been a long courtship, it is everred, and about a week ago Mr. Carson came on from Chicago, clated and happy at the prospect of being speedily united to his loved one. He put up at the St. James. Yesterday Mr. Carson drove to the house of his prospective bride, who resides with her mother at 244 West Twenty-third street. From there the couple were driven to the residence of Rev. Dr. Houghton, pastor of the Little Church Around the Corner. The reverend gentleman questioned the pair closely and succeeded in eliciting the fact that Mr. Carson had been married once before, but was divorced.

According to the laws of the Episcopal Church, Dr. Houghton could not marry them, and the disappointed couple betook themselves to another clergyman, but he, too, refused.

Then they gave it up and returned home. It is said that hims Harrison insists on being married by an Episcopal clergyman.

This morning, however, another attempt soms to have been made by the persistent couple.

Mr. Carson was not at his hotel this morning when The Evenno World preporter called, and when a surfacence was that he had gone to see Miss Harrison. A cab was seen in front of the door of 244 West Twenty-third street.

The cabman was a good-natured, communicative sort of a fellow, and he admitted that Mr. Carson was inside and that he was waiting to drive him and Miss Harrison to breakfast at the St. James.

A gull at the bell brought Mrs. Harrison to the St. James.

within ten minutes after the reporter left, Mr. Carson and Miss Harrison came down the stoop and entered the cab. The reporter saw them from a convenient doorway.

They were not out of sight when a very young Episcopalian minister left the house and walked rapidly east.

The reporter overhauled him.

"Mi you just marry Miss Maud Harrison and Mr. Carson 7" he asked.

"No. sir: I did not," he replied, with an affrighted air, and then sped up the street like a deer.

anrighted air, and then specially the street like a deer.

Not another question would be answer. He appeared to be angry with some one.

Then the reporter went back to the St. James.

Miss Harrison and Mr. Carson were discussing a cosy breakfast in the dining-room.

The reporter sent in a card asking if the mastriage ceremony was performed this morning.

The answer sent back was: "No."

Nevertheless, the current rumor around the hotel was that the couple had succeeded in having the ceremony performed, and that Mr. and Mrs. Carson would soon be on their way to Boston.

Smith says he had $50, $29 of which was in one pocket and $21 in the other.

He retired about $0 'clock and knew nothing more until he awoke in the hospital and found only $21 left in his pocket.

His story is partly corroborated by the fact that both Fleming and Tully are missing, and that had the gas been turned on from the time he retired he would have been dead when found.

The police are investigating.
